SWEETS OF LIBERTY.

Is there a heart that never sigh'd
To set the prisoner free?
Is there a man that never prized
The sweets of liberty?
Then let him, let him breath unseen,
Or in a dungeon live;
Nor never, never know the sweets
That liberty can give.
Is there a heart so cold in man,
Can galling fetters leave?
Is there a wretch so truly low,
Can stoop to be a slave?
O, let him, then, in chains be bound,
In chains and bondage live;
Nor never, never know the sweets
That liberty can give.
Is there a breast so chilled in life,
Can nurse the coward's sigh?
Is there a creature so debased,
Would not for freedom die?
O, let him, then, be doom'd to crawl
Where only reptiles live;
Nor never, never know the sweets
That liberty can give.

Flaunt thy colors 'neath our home!
By thy rags our hearts are given,
Thy stars are like the welkin dome,
And all thy hues were born in heaven.
Forever hoist that standard sheet!
Where breathes the foe, but falls before us,
With Freedom's soil beneath our feet,
And Freedom's banner streaming o'er us!

HISTORY OF OUR FLAG.

The Flag, during the Confederation, was endorsed by the Congress of that body, by a resolution adopted on the 14th of June, 1777, as follows:

Resolved, That the Flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be thirteen Stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

This Flag continued in use until July 4th, 1818, when the number of States in the Union amounted to twenty, and on the 4th of April, 1818, Congress passed the following law:

"SEC. 1. Be it enacted, &c., That from and after the 4th day of July next, the Flag of the United States be thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be twenty stars, white on a blue field."

SEC. 2. That on the admission of every new State into the Union, one star be added to the Union of the Flag, and that such addition shall take effect on the 4th day of July, next succeeding such admission."

So stands the Law at this day, and is unalterable but by law
