Orders
No. 12

1. . . The Commanding General has the grateful task of congratulating the troops, upon the brilliant success which attended their arms in the conflict of the 22d & 23d confident in the invincible superiority of numbers and stimulated by the presence of a distinguished leader, the Mexican troops were yet repulsed in every effort to force our lines and finally withdrew with immence loss from the field.

11. . . The General would express his obligations to the Officers and men engaged, for the cordial support which they rendered throughout the action. It will be his highest pride to bring to the notice of the Government, the conspicuous gallantry of particular Officers and corps, whose unwavering steadiness more than once saved the fortunes of the day. He would express his high satisfaction with the conduct of the small command left to hold Saltillo though not so seriously engaged as their comrades, their services were very important, and efficiently rendered, while bestowing this just tribute to the good conduct of the troops, the General deeply regrets to say, that there were not a few exceptions, He trusts that those who fled ingloriously to Buena Vista, and even to Saltillo will seek an opportunity to retrieve their reputation, and to emulate their comrades, who bore the brunt of the battle and sustained against fearful odds the honor of the flag.

III... The Exultation of success is checked by the heavy sacrifice of life which it has cost, embracing many officers of high rank, and sure merit, while the sympathies of a grateful Country, will be given to the bereaved families, and friends, of those who nobly fell, their illustrious Example will remain for the benefit, and admiration of the Army,

I . . . The Commanding General has the grateful task of congratulating the troops, upon the brilliant success which attended their arms in the conflict of the 22nd and 23rd. Confident in the invincible superiority of numbers and stimulated by the presence of a distinguished leader, the Mexican troops were yet repulsed in every effort to force our lines and finally withdrew with immence loss from the field.

II . . . The General would express his obligations to the officers and men engaged, for the cordial support which they rendered throughout the actions. It will be his highest pride to bring to the notice of the Government, the conspicuous gallantry of partickular [sic] officers and corps, whose unswerving steadiness more than once saved the fortunes of the day. He would express his high satisfaction with the conduct of the small command left to hold Saltillo. Though not so seriously engaged as their comrades, their services were very important, and efficiently rendered. While bestowing this just tribute to the good conduct of the troops, the General deeply regrets to say, that there were not a few exceptions. He trusts that those who fled ingloriously to Buena Vista, and even to Saltillo will seek an opportunity to retrieve their reputation and to emulate their comrades, who bore the brunt of the battle and sustained against fearful odds the honor of the flag.

III . . . The exultation of success is checked by the heavy sacrifice of life which it has cost, embracing many officers of high rank and rare merit. While the sympathies of a grateful country will be given to the bereaved families, and friends, of those who nobly fell, their illustrious example will remain for the benefit, and admiration of the army.
