WORLD'S FAIR

A CENTURY OF PROGRESS

1833 - 1933

To those intrepid adventurers who braved the dangers of the unknown wilderness and founded the settlement now known as Chicago, and to those gallant defenders of Fort Dearborn on which site Chicago now stands, this cover is dedicated.

The World's Fair is a shining monument to their memory and also to those who delved in the secrets of Science with the resulting betterment of living. The wide world has given of its stores of rare beauty and the latest discoveries and improvements in the fields of Science, Agriculture, Transportation, etc., are shown in detail. Over 34 Nations will be represented, and it is estimated 4,000,000 people will visit the World's Fair between June 1st and November 1st, 1933.

1933

Today, May 27, 1933, The Century of Progress International Exposition opens in Chicago. The double cachet appearing on this envelope records the great day. As originally planned and as tentatively announced, President Franklin Delano Roosevelt was to have personally officiated at the ceremony. Due to press of official business in Washington this became impossible, and in his place the President named James A. Farley, Postmaster-General of the United States, who officially opened the Exposition on this day.

This cachet is presented with the compliments of . . .

SEVENTY YEARS OF PROGRESS IN THE RAILWAY POST OFFICE

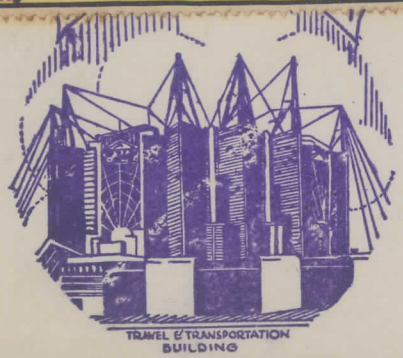

■ In a little car like this, on July 28, 1862, enroute from West Quincy to St. Joseph, Missouri, over what is now a part of the Burlington main line from Chicago to Kansas City and St. Joseph, United States Mail was first sorted while in transit. The purpose was to speed the departure of the overland stage coach from St. Joseph to California.

■ At the right is the modern standard Railway Post Office, in several of which the California and other western mail is now sorted nightly on the Burlington fast mail trains between Chicago and Omaha.

The old and the new mail cars form a part of the Burlington's exhibit at A Century of Progress Exposition in 1934

FAIR-O-GRAMS

Insurance companies throughout the world have refused to issue a policy on the life of Edmond Zacchini, the human cannonball, who will twice daily serve as a projectile from a huge seige-gun as a feature of the Congress of Thrills at the Fair, beginning today, on the Plaza of the General Exhibits.

Fittingly, as A Century of Progress draws to its closing forever, seven days from Sunday October 14, to Saturday October 20, will be celebrated as Harvest Home Week.

Covering approximately 9,000 miles in ten days, "A Century of Progress Ranger", checked in at the Red Crown Cage of Fury at the Fair. Sponsors predicted this car can cover an average year's mileage in two weeks.

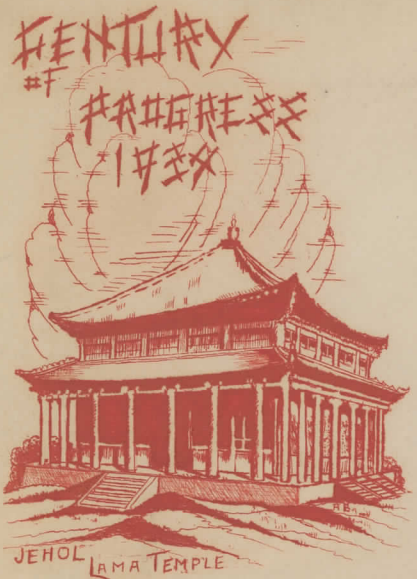

The Tunisian Village is an authentic reproduction of a typical garrison town of the French Foreign Legion, similar to those that border the desert country of North Africa.

High fortified walls of gleaming white surround the area, above these, queer conical domes of dwellings and shops can be seen.

In the village square the visitor sees native performers preparing for the entertainment which is one of the features of this Village.

The Tunisian Museum is a reproduction of a room in the Government Hall in the city of Tunis. Arab craftmanship is exhibited here.

Engine 35 . . . vintage of 1882. Behind it is a reproduction of the first railway car in which U. S. Mail was assorted in transit, (1862) and thus the actual starting point of today's extensive Railway Post Office service.

The old and the new mail cars form a part of the Burlington's exhibit at A Century of Progress Exposition in 1934

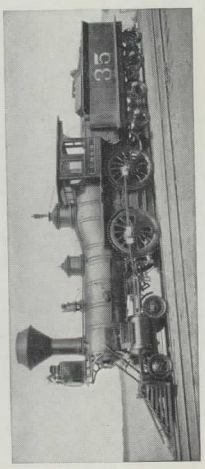

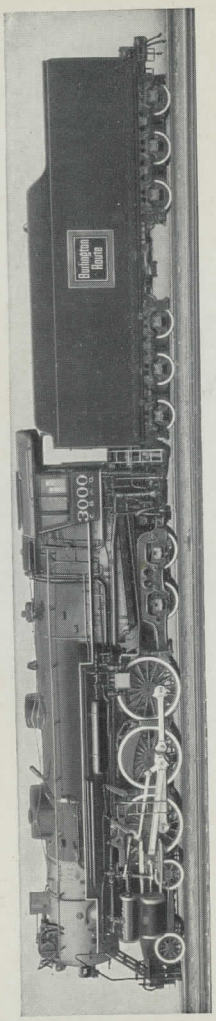

SEVENTY YEARS OF PROGRESS IN THE RAILWAY POST OFFICE

■ In a little car like this, on July 28, 1862, enroute from West Quincy to St. Joseph, Missouri, over what is now a part of the Burlington main line from Chicago to Kansas City and St. Joseph, United States Mail was first sorted while in transit. The purpose was to speed the departure of the overland stage coach from St. Joseph to California.

■ At the right is the modern standard Railway Post Office, in several of which the California and other western mail is now sorted nightly on the Burlington fast mail trains between Chicago and Omaha.

50 YEARS OF PROGRESS IN BURLINGTON LOCOMOTIVES

COMPARISON	No. 35	No. 3000
Length	55 feet	93 feet 2 in.
Weight	148 000 lbs.	718 000 lbs.
Boiler Diameter	4½ feet	8 feet
Dimension of firebox	2¾ x 6 ft.	8 x 11 feet
Diameter of drivers	5⅛ feet	6½ feet
Length of boiler tubes	2231 feet	4674 feet
Tractive effort	12,880 lb.	59,400 lb.
Water capacity of tank	2750 gals.	15,000 gals.
Coal capacity of tender	7 tons	24 tons

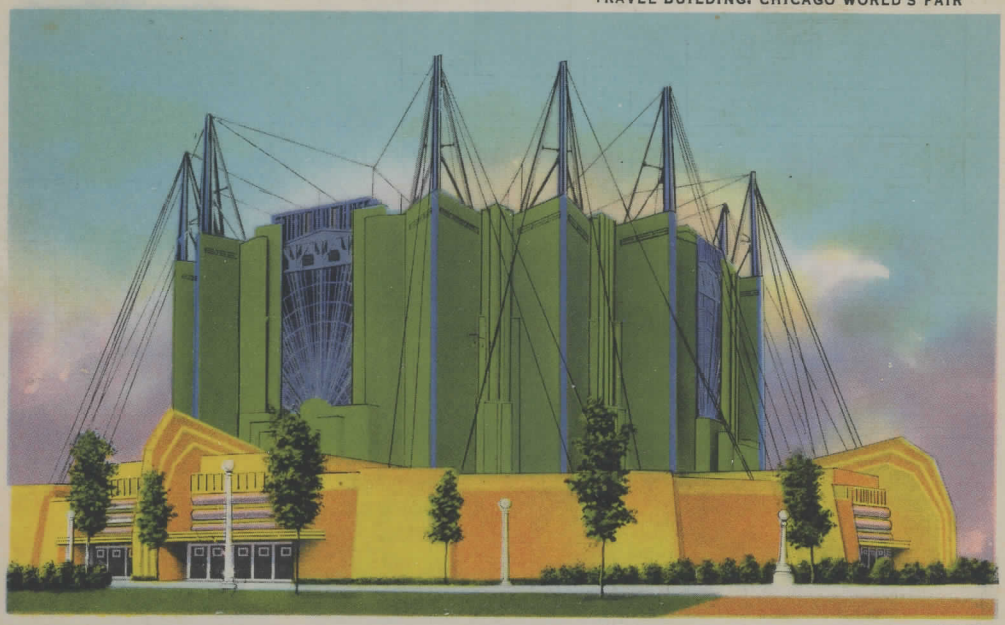

Side by side on the World's Fair grounds, these Burlington passenger engines illustrate a wonderful evolution in railroad motive power.

The little 35 was the Pride of the Prairies in 1882, and rolled up an incredible mileage in its day. It is still in perfect running condition.

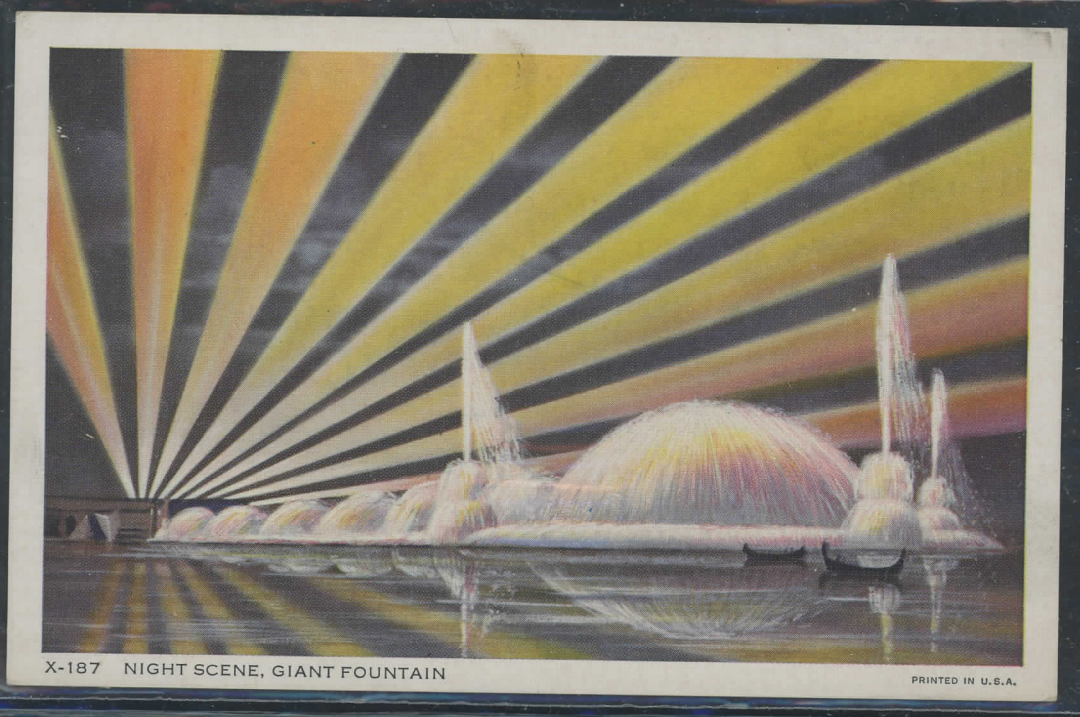

The 3000 is the most powerful 4-6-4-wheeled type locomotive in the world. It heads the Burlington's crack five-car exhibition train at the Century of Progress Exposition in 1934.
